

mxHero Mail2Cloud optimizes email for the Box platform. Emails saved by Mail2Cloud are carefully adapted to fully leverage the features and benefits not natively available to email content otherwise placed into Box.

The Email

Emails are multipart file types that often contain complex formatting, embedded images and additional files (attachments).

As a key communication medium and record of transaction between your organization and its clients and partners, email contains some of the most important content in the company.

Box excels as a content management platform, but it wasn't designed for email content. Mail2Cloud fills the gap, allowing you to manage your emails in Box just like you do files.

Email not saved with Mail2Cloud loses basic formatting when viewed in Box, making it hard to read.

Critically, hyperlinks and images are lost making important information inaccessible.

Attachments are embedded below the message, inconveniently not separated from message, and similarly suffer from formatting loss.

Saving Email to Box with Mail2Cloud

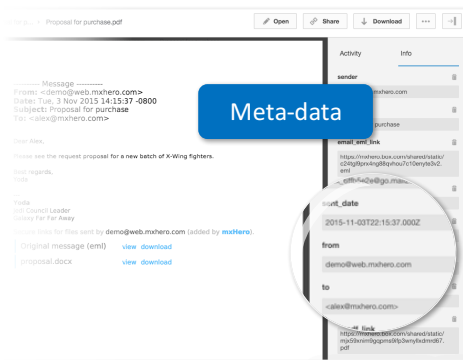

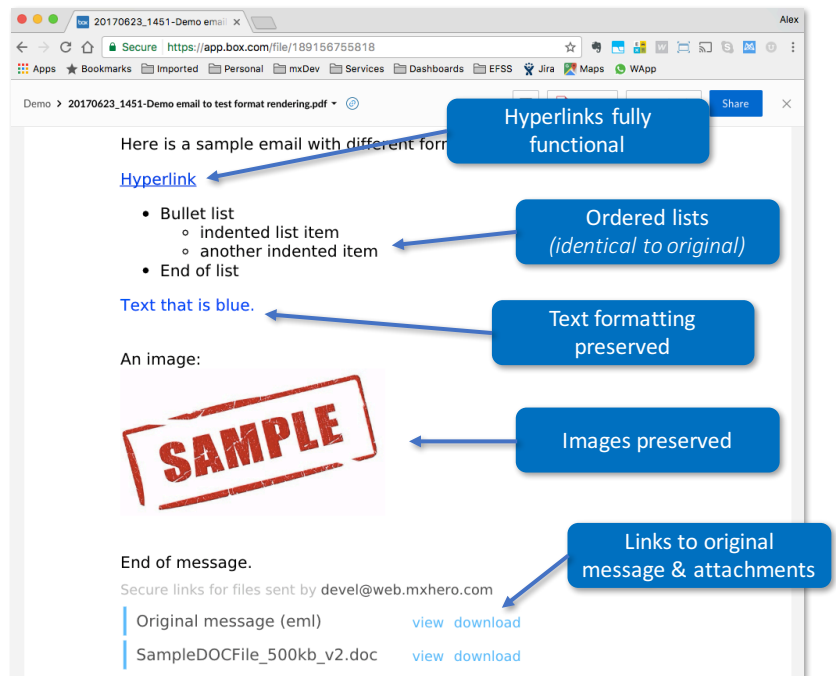

Mail2Cloud offers a broad array of options for getting your email into Box. From easy drag & drop directly from Outlook to fully automated and intelligent capture and classification of messages to the correct folder in Box from any email client (mobile, laptop, Windows, Mac, Linux, etc.).

- Images
- Tables

Attachments are conveniently saved separately and linked in the PDF. The original message is also accessible as an eml file, which can be readily opened by most email programs including Outlook, Mac Mail, Thunderbird.

Mail2Cloud leverages Box meta-data

All email content imported by Mail2Cloud (message & attachments) have header information added as Box meta-data for powerful search flexibility. Email and documents can be searched by sender, recipient, date. Furthermore, any document found links back to the email message that it was a part.
